Strategies for Fostering Inclusion of Divyangjans in Post Corona era.

Concept Note/Background/Introduction:

CONCEPT NOTE

Background & Rationale:

Disability, specially Sensory disabilities, imposes sufficiently severe has numerous primary and secondary effects on the human beings. Its primary effect is the restriction it can impose on acquisition & use of language in communication. Its secondary effects are more widespread (particularly because of inappropriate measures of habilitation) can include impoverished communication that restricts experience, hinder personal/social development and prevent optimal educational attainment. The third level of adverse effect is found when the child is due to leave school. Poor educational attainments will restrict employment options, limit income and circumscribe the leisure activities. These restrains can in turn substantially reduce the quality of a person's life in a myriad of ways. As we are already aware that the effects of hearing impairment are not only limited to the affected individual rather such effects are also extended to the family of the person and to the society at large.

The ability to communicate with teacher & peers is the major component of academic success for students with hearing loss. Teacher – student communication and student - student communication are primary means of learning in the classroom. Students who have difficulty communicating in the classroom may choose not to participate in the classroom activities, which may in turn effect their learning and ultimately hinder their academic success.

The variations in communication skills are more complex than simply classifying students as proficient in spoken communication or in sign communication because various combinations of the two have implications in terms of how the deaf students will interact with hearing peers as well as with deaf ones. Deaf and hard of hearing students communicate differently depending on the situation. In communicating with hearing peers, some students prefer using spoken communication only, others may use both spoken communication and sign, while still others may use sign communication only. Deaf & hard of hearing students may use a variety of styles and strategies for communication, depending on who is doing the communication with whom and the setting. As we are aware that India is a signatory to the United Nations Convention on Rights of the People with Disabilities (UNCRPD) which strongly promote, protect and ensure the full and equal enjoyment of all human rights and fundamental freedoms by all persons with disabilities and to promote respect for their inherent dignity. In its Article 24 it also ensures state parties to facilitate the learning of sign language and for the promotion of the linguistic identity of the deaf community.

Since CORONA-19 has imposed multifaceted implications in the life of everybody and among them Divyangjans are most severely affected. Therefore to plan out ample strategies for fostering Inclusion of them in the mainstream society, it was felt that it is the need of the hour to probably explore this extremely important and essential area to provide barrier free, inclusive, right based and discuss this issue in length during lockdown period, via online mode.

Need of the hour: Inclusive Education

NCF (2005) advocates that learners with special needs should be educated with other learners in “Inclusive schools.” It further visualizes the creation of Inclusive schools wherein learning is child-centered, catering to the needs & requirements of each individual child.

Now, we see the child as a constructor of his/her own knowledge & move away from traditional teacher dominated “chalk-talk-text” based teaching towards child centered education that makes use of child centered pedagogy. It is worthwhile, to mention here, that Inclusion is a process & not a method or condition which ultimately leads to the empowerment of the learners with special needs, in an environment of self- motivated, self - actualizing and self - monitored learning.
